

Inaction stalls implementation of campaign reform

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate-spawned law to prevent future campaign finance scandals is being stalled by the inaction of President Ford and Congress.

Nearly four months have passed since the law was signed Oct. 15. Yet there is no commission to enforce it, no staff has been hired and no regulations have been written.

Congress has not yet appropriated so much as a dime to pay for enforcement, and Ford is seeking a fraction of the amount Congress originally envisioned.

No date has been set for Senate or House hearings on the qualifications of the persons nominated as election commissioner. Congress finished selecting its four nominees late last month but Ford still has not picked his two nominees.

Technically, the new law took effect New Year's Day.

Meanwhile, presidential and congressional candidates are operating in a partial vacuum, forced to make their own interpretations of the new law's provisions, some of which are complicated and vague.

Several candidates and potential candidates already are raising money for the 1976 presidential election. A special congressional election was held last month in Louisiana, and a special congressional primary is set for April 5 in Chicago.

Many past candidates have debts from last year's congressional races and even the 1972 presidential campaigns.

In the eyes of some proponents of the bill, the situation is becoming dangerous.

"Unless this turns around, we're on our way to one hell of a mess, and a hell of a scandal before we even get started," said Fred Wertheimer, vice president of Common Cause, the lobbying group that pushed to get the new law enacted.

"If people don't feel the law is going to be enforced, they're going to go back to the old ways. The danger signs are all over the place," he said.

Former Rep. Robert O. Tierman, D-R.I., who has been nominated by the House to serve on the election commission, said in a telephone interview that he doesn't like the delays either.

"The law went into effect in January, and we're going to have an awful time getting rules and regulations promulgated," he said. "I think we should be moving very fast, but you know it's up to the President to send up the nominees, and the House is going to have to move" on financing bills and confirmation of its commission nominees.

When the new commission gets started it may face a severe budget problem. Congress initially authorized up to $5 million for the commission's first fiscal year, which ends June 30. President Ford's budget seeks $500,000 for that period, and $2 million for 1976, when the presidential campaign will be in full swing. The actual money available to the commission will depend on how much Congress eventually appropriates.

Caught in cash squeeze, Lohse tells City Council

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Painting a bleak financial picture for the future of Dixon's city government, Finance Commissioner Walter Lohse urged department heads to "hold the line" on the budget, and moments after, Mayor Walder asked a special census be taken to recover an expected loss of $35,000 in revenue sharing funds based on federal population figures for the city.

Lohse termed the present crisis "a cash-flow squeeze," which he claimed began with last year's advanced planning for cost of living. "Who could have been able to anticipate this rapid inflation," he explained, noting a $30,000 increase in the cost of living paid to city employees. "It's just a matter of our income not escalating in the same proportion to our expenses." Lohse said in addressing commissioners during Monday's City Council meeting. He also hinted that a late tax multiplier from the Department of Local Government Affairs may put a further squeeze on the budget. The DLGA multiplier is used by local county treasurers to compute real estate taxes.

A government report showing a 1,559 decrease in Dixon's population prompted Walder to ask for a special census. "Based on this report it looks like Dixon might be a shrinking city," the mayor said. "It's my belief that they show more of a loss than what is here."

Walder cited recent annexation of Chateau Estates and an increase in residents in the Lee County Nursing Home, Orchard Glen and Village Inn in substantiating his claim. "I've been told they base their figures on a highly sophisticated computer study—and unless we can convince them otherwise, we stand to lose."

A loss of 1,388 patients at Dixon State School between April 1970 and August 1974 was believed a high factor in reducing the population from the 1970 census level of 18,147 to the revised government figure of 16,588.

Walder proposed that service clubs might conduct the census as he mentioned the Lions and Jaycees groups in his request. "It's (the census) one of the few things the government will accept over their figures."

The city presently receives $350,000 annually in revenue sharing funds. Such a decrease, if accepted, would also mean a reduction in the state sales tax receipts reimbursed to the city.

In an explanation of the government figures, Lohse said an increase in the per capita income for Dixon families would result in a decrease in revenue-sharing funds. "It's one of the factors they consider." During the 1974 negotiating sessions between the Dixon School Board and Dixon Teachers Association, the DTA claimed Dixon was ranked third highest in the state for per capita income, in substantiating their pay demands.

Although the future was painted dim on the financial side, commissioners did agree to purchase the Snow-Beanblossom parking lots for a price of $130,000 payable to each of two owners in equal installments. Owners of the lot, which has been leased to the city in the past, are Mollie Sinow and Elizabeth Beanblossom.

Walder said the negotiation on the property has been in the works for the past 18 months, during which time "we attempted to reach a fair price."

Speaking of the deteriorating lot, Walder explained that any improvements made during the negotiations might have weakened our position at the bargaining table.

The mayor said some landscaping and pavement renovations are planned for next year. Lohse suggested the city might look into borrowing the funds to finance the purchase; however, Arthur Toft, commissioner of police and fire, suggested the city use revenues from the sale of city-owned property near KSB Hospital to offset the purchase. Negotiations are under way for sale of the lot to the hospital for parking facilities.

Mayor Walder, who promised a group of property owners two weeks ago he would help them with legal fees in their attempt to reopen Van Buren Avenue, said Monday night his share of the legal fees will be $63.

The property owners are taking court action to reopen the street, barricaded by Contractor Thomas Mighell. Mighell took the action after a series of thefts at the old Freeman Shoe Co. property he now owns.

The street was vacated by the city in 1887, which is about the time the shoe factory was built, but the street had remained open and been maintained by the city for 88 years.

Walder said the case will be heard in Lee County Court on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Council members okayed the issuance of $60,000 in airport revenue bonds for financing of a hangar already constructed at Walgreen Field and ap-

Senate approval due Wednesday

Ford 'gaining strength' in expected veto battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford was quoted as telling Republican congressional leaders today he will veto expected legislation to delay his oil tariff hikes and feels he is "gaining strength" in his fight to have the veto upheld.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen declined to predict a veto, but he quoted the President as telling the Republican leaders at a breakfast meeting: "The first thing we have to do is sustain the veto."

The legislation, passed by the House, would suspend Ford's $3-a-barrel oil import tariff for 90 days. The Senate is expected to approve the suspension by a large margin. A Senate vote is scheduled for 5 p.m. EST Wednesday.

At a White House briefing, Nessen told newsmen Ford will act by executive order to de-control the price of so-called "old oil" effective April 1. "Old oil" is each month's designation of petroleum brought into production by the corresponding month of 1972.

The GOP leaders met with Ford more than an hour and a half, and contrary to their usual practice, did not hold a White House briefing for newsmen afterward. Instead Nessen gave a report on the breakfast.

The press secretary said Ford told the leaders the first order of business will be to sustain a veto of the tariff delay, then get Congress to act on an energy program.

If that is done, Nessen quoted Ford as saying, "we might be able to make accommodations on details."

The President dined Monday night with 12 senators from the Republican Steering Committee, a conservative group, and asked their support for his oil imports tariff plan.

Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, one of the 12, later said he told Ford the Senate would sustain the President's expected veto of the legislation suspending the tariff.

"It will be close, with one or two votes making the difference," McClure said.

As the Democratic-controlled Congress sought to delay Ford's oil tariffs, a task force headed by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., was to report today to the 14-member Democratic Policy Committee on an alternative energy-conservation program.

The key to the Democratic program is a gasoline tax increase that escalates as unemployment declines, with the tax revenues being channeled into energy research and to pay for conservation efforts, such as more efficient cars and building heating.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said he expected the Policy Committee to approve the task force's plan, possibly with some changes.

The administration's energy program would erode the average family's purchasing power and overwhelm any benefit from a tax cut, chairman James Wright of a House Democratic task force on energy said today.

Wright, D-Tex., in a speech prepared for the New York Society of Security Analysts, asserted that President Ford's $3-per-barrel tariff on imported oil would cost consumers $7.6 billion this year.

Shah promises to replace any Israeli oil losses

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi gave seeming assurance today that Iran is ready to replace any oil Israel might lose if it returned to Egypt the Abu Rudeis oilfields in any new Sinai agreement worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Once the tankers are loaded, we don't mind where the oil goes," the Shah said after a three-hour meeting with Kissinger. "It is a purely commercial transaction for us."

He also made plain that Iran would not join in any economic boycott of Israel.

"We have never really boycotted any country. We think that politics and commerce are separate," he said.

He also re-emphasized that Iran would not be part of any oil embargo against Western consumer countries.

"We have not taken part in the first oil embargo, and we will not take part in any other," he said.

He said that in any case a future embargo would "not work any more because of the tremendous" stocks since built up in the West. "Today, wars cannot last more than three weeks," he added.

Kissinger flew to Zurich from London where he gave a public assurance that the Soviet Union will not be excluded from his efforts to achieve a Middle East settlement.

"I hope the Soviet Union will understand that any step toward peace is in the interest of everybody," he said. "We have always asserted that a final settlement will require the participation and cooperation of the Soviet Union."

Two cordons of police, with dogs, checked all roads of access to the hillside hotel where they met. Police took positions six hours before Kissinger arrived.

The Shah interrupted a four-week skiing vacation in St. Moritz to meet Kissinger. A private jet took him to Zurich airport where he climbed into a beige Mercedes which he drove to the hotel.

The Middle East and Prime Minister Harold Wilson's trip to Moscow dominated Kissinger's talks in London. He told reporters that "we consider the British visit extremely successful and a contribution to the relaxation of tensions."

However a Lebanese confidant of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat reported in a Beirut newspaper that Kissinger had reached a "dead end" in his efforts toward a new Israeli-Egyptian disengagement.

Nixon impoundments illegal, court rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon exceeded his authority in withholding $9 billion authorized by Congress for pollution control, the Supreme Court declared unanimously today.

It was the first time the Supreme Court has ruled on a presidential impoundment of funds, although numerous impoundments were struck down by lower federal courts during the Nixon administration.

Congress has since passed legislation giving itself power to control such impoundments.

In other action today, the court:

- Ruled that a criminal suspect cannot be jailed for an extended period solely on the word of a prosecutor with no opportunity for a preliminary court hearing. But the justices said local officials need not provide full-blown adversary proceedings allowing the defendant an attorney and the right to cross-examine witnesses at preliminary hearings.

— Agreed to decide whether police need a warrant to make an arrest in a public place.

— Agreed to bar the State of Missouri from enforcing a 1974 law restricting abortions, pending an appeal of a lower-court ruling that the law is constitutional.

— Declined to review the conviction of a Buffalo, N. Y., doctor who was charged with negligent homicide after a young woman patient died following an abortion.

— Agreed to review a Maryland program of state aid to private colleges. The court will hear arguments of a three-judge federal court in Baltimore that the program did not violate the constitutional ban against laws "respecting an establishment of religion," even though some of the aid went to church-related schools.

Speaking through Justice Byron R. White, the Supreme Court said the act under which the pollution-control money was appropriated "was intended to provide a firm commitment of substantial sums within the relatively limited period of time in an effort to achieve an early solution of what was deemed an urgent problem."

"We cannot believe that Congress at the last minute scuttled the entire effort by providing the executive with the seemingly limitless power to withhold funds from allotment and obligation," White said.

Seven of the justices joined in full in White's opinion. Justice William O. Douglas, who is recovering from a stroke, concurred in the result.

In 1972, Congress authorized the appropriations not to exceed $5 billion for fiscal year 1973, $6 billion for fiscal 1974 and $7 billion for fiscal 1975 for sewage treatment grants.

Russell Train, then administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, acting on the Nixon's orders, allotted $2 billion for 1973, $3 billion for 1974 and $4 billion for 1975.

The City of New York challenged the Nixon administration's failure to allocate the full amount. The bill authorizing the funds was passed over Nixon's veto.

The Supreme Court's decision upheld a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington that the administration was obligated to allocate the full amount.

The government contended that the impoundments were authorized under a 1972 amendment inserting the words "not to exceed" in the legislation under which the funds were authorized.

The court said, however, this language "reflects the realistic possibility that approved applications for grants from funds already allotted would not total the maximum amount authorized to be appropriated."

The language did not, the court said, excuse the administration from allotting the full amount.

At the same time, in an unsigned opinion, the court sent a similar challenge of impoundment back to the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., to be reconsidered in light of today's decision in the New York case.

The Richmond court, acting on a challenge by a Virginia environmental group called Campaign Clean Water, Inc., had ruled that the administration did have the power to control or delay allotments

Good public officials make a good country

It is not the Constitution or the form of government a country has that makes it a good place to live. It is the type of people who operate the government which makes it an ideal place to live. Some people say, "Return to the Constitution." Just what does that mean? Perhaps they are conservative and want to be self-reliant. Eliminate government interference in their daily lives, make us all responsible for what we do.

Freedom, what is the definition? A short thought is, "Freedom allows everyone to do whatever they please, providing they do not harm anyone else." This philosophy would eliminate many laws that do gooders have placed upon the people and business which create more expense than all the working people have to pay.

The man to create a good government must be determined to have only sufficient government to protect the citizens and no more. A well-trained and equipped armed service that would discourage any dictator from trying to invade your country.

Laws that punished the wrongdoer severely and courts that followed the laws. A review board to check on all judges that evaded the exact law. This board would have the power to imprison any judge who did not follow the laws.

Money would be under the government control backed by gold which would be priced by the free market. If you contracted to build a home for a certain price, you would pay contractor the number of dollars as specified by the value of gold in the open market on date building is completed.

The Constitution does not give the federal government any power or right to educate your children. The same for health or welfare. Politicians have assumed these powers in order to socialize the youth.

How can we correct our problems? It could be done by electing and backing a man who would carry out the following suggestions.

Eliminate all government spending as noted above.

Send a polite friendly letter to all nations with the full amount of money they owe the United States, requesting them to pay one fourth by the end of the month because we are bankrupt. This would create an hilarious laugh from all concerned. At the end of the month order all ambassadors home. Request the Swiss ambassador to sell all our embassies for what they could get in gold.

A month later request all the ambassadors in America to leave, also the United Nations.

Any spies left in America would be arrested when caught and imprisoned or executed, dependent on what they had done.

The U.S. embassies abroad are a great deal larger than what we need. When we have political relations at a later date we could rent or build suitable buildings.

We would have a better government if the President served for one term of four years only, the senators two terms of four years each if re-elected, or the representatives could serve four terms of two years each, or eight years total if re-elected.

After a person is in office longer than the above they now become desirous of serving until they die because of the money and power they acquire. Only taxpayers would be allowed to vote for they are the ones who furnish the money.

In a free country everyone has the privilege of selling what they owe for whatever price they want. It is wrong to pass laws freezing wages, food, rents, etc. Freezing increases black markets or takes away the abundance of food, clothing, etc.

Your Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has intimidated the United States will go to war if the oil rich countries do not reduce their prices. The oil belongs to them and no one should be allowed to take it away from them. If Kissinger makes this type of statement it is disgraceful to America. He has made other detrimental suggestions, like giving the Panama Canal to the communists. Rebuild political relations with Castro of Cuba. One wonders if Kissinger is a communistic agent, for he helps them more than he does American citizens.

The men who created Watergate were led by David Young, a former Kissinger aide. He was not brought to trial. The rest of Nixon's employees have been sentenced to jail. It was the plumbers who conducted the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's office for information on the theft of the Pentagon Papers. Ellsberg was excused for the theft of government papers. Ellsberg is a Kissinger protégé.

We now have Rockefeller and his buddy, Henry Kissinger, in a strong political position. Does the result look favorable for the citizens of the United States?

Kissinger's Detente certainly has jerked the rug from under us. We don't know from one minute to the next what the communists will do.

Richard Nixon used the words from Henry Kissinger that the war in South Vietnam was ended with honor. Neither words are true.

The United States government is supplying Israel with funds and a great deal of war material. Your government keeps cutting supplies to South Vietnam, who are being torn to shreds.

Why do we protect one nation and forsake another?

Ben T. Shaw

Time running out

By DON OAKLEY

The current upturn in new car sales, spurred by the rebate idea, is an encouraging development—as long as one doesn't look too far beyond its immediately beneficial impact on the distressed auto industry.

But we seem to be working at cross purposes in this country, and one state official put it in a nutshell the other day.

On the one hand, the government is encouraging Americans to buy new cars to keep the economy going, on the other hand, through proposed hikes in the cost of gasoline and the threat, at least by Congress, of rationing, it is telling them not to drive them.

"It has to test your intelligence," said Charles White, a member of the Ohio Energy Advisory Council.

There will always be a market for automobiles in America. Cars do wear out, and people do like to buy new ones.

But how deep really is the future market, especially when there is no prospect in sight of any dramatic improvement in automobile fuel economy?

The spurt in sales is welcome, but how long can it last, especially since the already-thin profits of the automakers are being sliced to the point of invisibility by the rebates?

Unless and until some new, cheap, abundant and pollution-free source of propulsive energy is discovered, Detroit is never going to see a return to the nine-million sales year. We may well be entering an era of permanent depression in the industry, with all that that portends for the rest of the economy.

We are working at cross purposes in other ways. It is hard to see how President Ford's program of increasing the price of petroleum can help but have both inflationary and recessionary repercussions.

It will be inflationary because it will raise the cost of making a host of products and the cost of transporting them. It will raise the cost of heating a home and running a plant. It will raise the cost of living generally, and every wage and Social Security benefit tied to the cost of living.

It will be recessionary because people will resist paying higher prices that they can avoid. There will be fewer sales, less production, more layoffs.

Speaking of fuel for heating, surely we are working at cross purposes when we curtail the availability of energy for our factories while maintaining it for residences. A lot of people are arguing that they would rather be a little cold in their houses than be at leisure to look out of a window at a plant that is shut down.

In short, this country still has no coherent, long-range energy policy, and time is running out.

Good news, bad news from Capitol

By RONALD REAGAN

There's a new good news-bad news story out of Capitol Hill. First, the good news:

It seems that Rep. Jim Collins, R-Tex., has introduced a bill that would give his colleagues a unique incentive plan for preventing federal budget deficits. They'd get to keep their salaries!

Under Collins' plan, if Congress passes a budget bill with a deficit, each member would automatically take a 10 per cent cut in pay. Thus, fiscal responsibility—an alien idea to many on the Hill—would become a highly visible and marketable commodity.

There would be another incentive for the good solons to get their hands out of your pockets: Collins' bill would give them an automatic 1 per cent salary increase for every $2 billion surplus they enacted. That's a little like rewarding the employee who submitted the best money-saving suggestion to the company suggestion box, but in this case the whole country would benefit. The chances of Collins' bill passing? Nil.

Now the bad news. Scarcely without notice, Rep. Phil Burton, D-Calif., the new chairman of the Democratic caucus and architect of the "reform" movement in the House, along with his new political bedfellow, doughty Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, slipped in a new House rule giving Hays' House Administration Committee shared responsibility over congressional pay raises and retirement benefits.

Previously, the Post Office and Civil Service committees had this responsibility.

What the move means, according to Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., is "a back door route to a congressional pay raise." He objected to the abruptness of the move and the fact that it was made "at a time when people are being asked to make sacrifices as part of the battle to solve our economic problems."

Here's one way a congressional pay hike might work: Hays' committee has the authority to increase various office and staff expenses by means of a voice vote of its own members, without ever going to the House floor for ratifications. Thus, it might grant members a "per diem" allowance to cover "expenses" of, say, $100 a day.

This would be a relatively simple way for the lawmakers to get several thousand dollars a year more, on top of their $42,500 annual salary and the existing generous office and stationery allowances they have.

Handily, for the "reformers" and their allies, no congressman would have to be embarrassed about taking a stand on such a potentially controversial issue. It would never come to a floor vote. Thus, your congressman could blame it on someone else. In fact, he could rail against it bitterly, all the while enjoying its benefits.

Already, Hays' committee in the last two years has increased the maximum amount members of Congress may use for running their offices by more than $18,000. If each of the 435 members were to use the maximum (thankfully, some don't), some $8 million more would be added to the federal deficit.

It's ironic that some congressmen are coupling their brave rhetoric of "reform" with a secretive plan to boost their income. It reminds me of a definition I once heard of a "liberal": "There's one thing he's liberal about: your money."

Analysis of $350 billion budget

WASHINGTON (LENS)— Any one who believes that the American economy needs strong fiscal stimulus can only be reassured by the budget (for the fiscal year which begins in July) that President Ford has sent to Congress.

This is so not only because of the very large estimated deficit of $52 billion; but also because of the near-certainty that the deficit will turn out to be much larger than that. The reason is that the estimated expenditure total of $349.4 billion assumes congressional approval of a $17 billion package of unpopular reforms to reduce spending, nearly all of which is almost sure to be rejected.

Consequently the spending total will be much larger than $349 billion. And Congress seems determined to block some of the higher taxes on oil as well.

The budget, and the accompanying Economic Report of the President, present an astonishingly grim picture of the outlook for the economy, at least as far as unemployment is concerned. Even though the two documents assume that the present steep slide will cease some time this year and will be succeeded by an upturn—helped in part by the stimulus from the budget—they see little lessening of unemployment for some time to come.

The forecast is for an unemployment rate averaging 8.1 per cent of the labor force in 1975 (it was 7.1 per cent in December) and 7.9 per cent in the election year of 1976. Unemployment in the United States has not exceeded 8 per cent since the great depression of the 1930s.

These projections are based on a cautious judgment that the recovery late this year and in 1976 will not be very vigorous, in spite of the President's proposed $16 billion stimulus for the economy through tax reduction, this is to consist mainly of a $12 billion rebate of 1974 taxes on individual incomes, which is allowed for in the estimate of the budget deficit.

Congress is very likely to approve a tax reduction of this magnitude or a little more; though in somewhat different form. But it is unlikely to approve the President's proposals to reduce expenditure.

So the budget deficit for the fiscal year 1976, ending a year from next June, might now be close to $70 billion. Would this in fact make fiscal policy more stimulative and ensure a stronger recovery?

Given the existence of a deep recession, few economists share the fears of William Simon, the Secretary of the Treasury, that Treasury borrowing to cover even the officially projected deficits—a two-year total of $87 billion in the period from mid-1974 to mid-1976, nearly all of which lies ahead—will strain the capital markets.

But adding another $15-$20 billion may cause a few palpitations in the heart of even the stoutest Keynesian.

Roy Ash, the outgoing budget director, has disagreed openly with Simon's worries about the deficits projected at present, but he has added a warning: "The last $17 billion is much harder (to borrow) than the first $17 billion."

With business demand for credit likely to be higher than normal for a recession (in part because prices continue to rise), mammoth Treasury borrowing might pre-empt credit from such sectors as housing and make it impossible for less credit-worthy firms to sell debt securities. In that event the Treasury borrowing itself would tend to abort the recovery.

The Federal Reserve Board could solve the problem by a massive increase in the money supply, but many fear that that would all but guarantee a revival of inflation 1976 and later.

In its accompanying report his Council of Economic Advisers was anything but bullish in its forecast for the economy later this year and in 1976, although it did suggest cautiously that there would be "a move on to the road of recovery in the second half of 1975."

This was based on analysis of all the main factors of demand; as always—business investment; housing, stocks, consumer purchases and government—but it was more than usually humble.

The humility was well taken, but for a reason the council could not mention: the total uncertainty about what Congress will do; particularly about the President's complex energy program, which is designed to secure a very large increase in prices of oil and natural gas.

The council admitted that this program would have a slight "drag" effect on real demand early in the year, and would add to the rate of inflation, but the Economic Report insisted that altogether the President's program is stimulative.

No doubt it would be. But seldom has an Economic Report been so academic, given the vast confusion in Congress. Fortunately, even if the President and Congress reach a total deadlock on energy, as seems quite possible, economic stimulus can proceed via tax reduction, though the magnitude can now be perceived only insofar as it is more likely to be larger than the President proposed than to be smaller, and spending by the federal government will surely exceed his requests.

Apart from its fiscal policy aspects, the President's budget, as always, provides an important insight into where the government stands and where it is going, and also into the President's own priorities and concerns. Several features stand out.

—Partly because of inflation but partly also because he wants a rise in real terms for the Defense Department, Mr. Ford has asked Congress to approve an increase of some $10 billion in spending on defense. Even at the proposed figure of $92.8 billion, spending on defense would continue to decline as a proportion of the total budget and of the gross national product.

—For the first time in memory a President has proposed essentially no new government program at all. He has put off national health insurance and reform of the public assistance system in definitely because both would be costly.

Now the whole affair goes to the unpredictable Congress, which has large Democratic majorities in each chamber. But the term "Democrats" is misleading. It is not far from the truth to say that for every Democratic member, there is a different idea of what should be done. The only reasonable certainty in this situation is that the budget deficit will be substantially larger than the President's estimate—for better or worse.

Betting Against the House

Greece letting bygones go

ATHENS (LENS)— The Greek government has decided that it is time to forget the bitter memories of the 1946-49 civil war, and believes that it can do so with reasonable safety.

This new approach has already led to the legalization of the Greek Communist party after 27 years, and the abolition of laws making communism a seditious offense.

But before the curtain can be finally dropped on this old drama the fate of nearly 100,000 Greeks who fled to the communist countries after the civil war and want to come back must be decided.

All opposition parties are advocating free repatriation for these political refugees, although most of them have lost their Greek nationality and some have convictions, hastily passed by the courts during the civil war, hanging over their heads.

The Karamanlis government has said it wants to resolve the problem, but it has misgivings about the social and economic impact of mass repatriation and the security problems it will pose. It has allowed well-known intellectuals to return and is also speeding up the consideration of individual applications.

When the communist rebellion was finally defeated by the Greek army in 1949, thousands of guerrillas crossed the northern border and sought asylum in the communist countries. Many of them managed to take their wives and children.

For the past 25 years the refugees have been settled in the Soviet Union (mainly in Tashkent), Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia; and the other European communist countries. They live mostly as separate communities, with their own schools and centers, always hoping that one day they will be allowed to go home. Now that day seems to be drawing near.

Greece's leaders and its newspapers have been flooded with appeals from refugee organizations calling for a sweeping amnesty for all civil war crimes, the restoration of the refugees' nationality, and unequalled permission for them to return. They argue that since Greek Communist leaders are now in parliament it is absurd that the rank and file should have to stay in exile.

There are no precise statistics about the refugees. A delegation from the central committee of Greek political refugees, which was allowed to come to Greece to plead its cause, said there were 61,300 refugees in all the communist countries other than Yugoslavia, where it is estimated that there are between 20,000 and 50,000, depending on whether the so-called Slav-Macedonians are regarded as Slavs or as Greeks.

The government does not intend to give a blanket permission for all to come back: it will consider the refugees category by category. Its main concern is state security. Three-quarters of the refugees are under 40 years old and, one must assume, are thoroughly indoctrinated with communist ideology. The refugees argue that this category was either born abroad or was too young to bear any responsibility for a civil war that ended 25 years ago.

The last thing the Greek authorities want is the mass repatriation of Slav-Macedonians from Yugoslavia, since the Greeks deny the existence of such a minority in refugees, who will have been subjected for years to propaganda about their ethnic separateness, might provoke a good deal of friction.

The government also plans to tread cautiously about the return of ex-fighters convicted for alleged civil war crimes. Although the possibility of an amnesty is not ruled out, their cases are likely to be dealt with individually for fear of provoking those who suffered at the hands of the communists.

The refugees argue that the repatriation, far from causing social and economic problems, could contribute to the country's development. Their delegation has pointed out that about 4,000 of them are university graduates, 15,800 have had a general education, and 12,000 are skilled workers who are badly needed in Greece.

The general consensus seems to be that the time has come for these expatriates to be allowed to return, meet their families gain, and explore the chances of settling down in Greece. But many of them may find it hard to uproot themselves from their adopted countries and may not want to return to their motherland.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes people to lose weight? I'm 68, five feet tall and weigh 101 pounds. I have lost 25 pounds in the last two years. I'm taking two Dilantin capsules daily for arteriosclerosis. My blood pressure is normal and my blood sugar is normal. Why have I lost weight?

DEAR READER — Weight loss is a simple balance between calories in and calories used by your body. The most common cause for weight loss is a decreased intake of calories, either from not eating as much or eating food that contains fewer calories.

Beyond that you can begin with things that prevent food from being absorbed through the intestinal wall into the circulation. There are a host of medical problems that can do this from the diarrhea-type disorders associated with pancreas disease to types of inflammation of the intestinal wall. Arteriosclerosis or changes in the arteries that supply the intestines can also interfere with their normal function and lead to weight loss.

If the calories get absorbed then it's time to think about the things that can happen to lose calories from the body. High on the list here is diabetes with loss of sugar, and hence calories, in the urine.

Any illness can increase the need for energy in the body cells. This can be a chronic illness like tuberculosis or an acute illness like pneumonia. Or, the thyroid can step up the metabolism like turning up the thermostat and more energy will be used. So, it isn't easy to say why you have lost weight. Because some causes for weight loss are serious medical problems. I believe anyone who has unexplained weight loss needs a good medical examination.

Don't forget that cancer can also be a cause of weight loss. So, don't delay. Go get a good examination to narrow down the possibilities and then if you must, get the proper treatment. I don't want to alarm you since it is probably your diet, but because of cancer, tuberculosis and diabetes as factors in unexplained weight loss, you simply must see a doctor. The same applies to anyone else with unexplained weight loss.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you please tell me what an occipital headache is, its symptoms and its causes? I heard this in conversation while on a bus recently. Yes, it does pertain to me, I think. I'm close to 82 years old.

DEAR READER — The skull is made up of many separate bones. The large flat bone that is the back of the skull is the occipital bone, and this part of the head is called the occiput.

When a head ache causes pain in the back of the head it is called an occipital headache. The term merely defines its location.

The location of a headache often has something to do with its cause. Headaches associated with high blood pressure may affect the occipital region, while migraine headaches commonly affect one side or both sides of the head. As with other headaches, a careful examination and detailed history is necessary to find out what type of headache you have and its cause. Then proper treatment can be given. ## New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Brandenburg-Von Holten wedding

WALNUT — Miss Jan Brandenburg, daughter of the Donald Brandenburgs, and David Von Holten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Les Von Holten, were married at 5:30 p.m. Feb. 1 in the Immanuel Lutheran Church, Rock Falls.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. E. A. Henrichs, pastor of the church, and Miss Karen Von Holten, sister of the bridegroom, provided organ accompaniment for vocal selections by the bridegroom's uncle, Merle Von Holten.

Decorations
Decorations for the ceremony included twin altar bouquets of Fuji chrysanthemums and foliage flanked by lighted tapers in seven-branched candelabra. Hurricane lights trimmed with foliage were attached to the sanctuary pews, and the first pews held clusters of carnations and evergreen boughs.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white sateen over taffeta. The gown's empire bodice was designed with a V-shaped yoke of Venetian lace interwoven with ribbon and Cluny lace, a high neckline of lace and ribbon and bishop sleeves ending in matching cuffs. The bodice topped an A-line skirt accented by front insertions of lace, a chapel train and a lace hemline band. A Juliet bonnet of Cluny lace held her tiered ballerina-length veil of illusion bordered with lace, and she carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy strands.

Mrs. David Hays, Arrow-smith, was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Chris Burke, Villa Park, served as bridesmaid. Their identical full-length hooded gowns of red velvet, which were fashioned by the bride, combined A-line skirts and tucked empire bodices with tapered sleeves. They carried single white roses with attached bows and streamers of white ribbon.

Mr. Von Holten's best man was David Birkey, acting as groomsmen were Richard Olson, and ushering was done by the bride's brother, Joseph Brandenburg, Paul Von Holten, the bridegroom's brother; Chris Kelly and Robert Behrman, both of Carbondale. The bride's brother, Jerry Brandenburg served as acolyte.

The Green River Country Club was the setting for a reception following the service when hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Renner, Rockford, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Linley. Decorations included red and white hearts and wedding bells, and a tiered wedding cake was served by Miss Janice Foss and Mrs. David Behrens. Presiding at the coffee service and punch bowl were Mrs. Les Oberg, Morris, and Mrs. Harold Stewart, Sterling, and in charge of the gift table were Miss Jan Renner, Rockford, and Miss Amy Brandenburg, Oglesby.

Additional assistants were Mrs. Gerald Graunke, Waupun, Wis.; Mrs. James Brandenburg, Tampico; Miss Marcia Renner, Rockford, and Miss Beth Brandenburg, Oglesby.

To Nassau
Since their return from a wedding trip to Nassau, Bahama Islands, the newlyweds have been residing in rural Harmon. Both are 1970 graduates of Walnut High School and 1974 graduates of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

The bride is presently employed as a dental hygienist in the office of Dr. G. E. Eckberg, Wyanet, and her husband is a salesman for the Rocket Trailer Sales Company, Rock Falls.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Is there a way to lighten face powder? I do not like to throw money away but that is exactly what I will be doing unless you can help me. The last powder I bought is so dark it does not go well with my white hair. — JANET

DEAR JANET — Indeed you can mix face powder to acquire another shade by putting the correct amount of each shade in a covered box and SHAKE WELL. Use the same brand and mix only a small amount at a time until the desired shade is attained — one's skin tone is also an important factor.

First, take the too dark powder back to the store where it was purchased. Perhaps they can offer a suggestion as to the shade to use for mixing with what you have. They may even have some samples you could use for this. Having to buy another box when you are not sure it is right is like throwing good money after bad. Blending is tricky business. If you are experimenting with powder you may have on hand, start with just one shade lighter than the new box and then add gradually. I really think this is one time you may benefit from buying a new box, after you have sought the advice of one of the consultants most stores have in their cosmetic departments. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with visitors who set their purses on my kitchen counter or table or even on the living room furniture. I've seen those same people put those purses on the floor in a public washroom or similar unsanitary place and would appreciate some thoughtfulness in regard to my home. — E. M. E.

DEAR POLLY — I get so many good ideas from the column that I want to contribute a Polly's Pointer. When you put new rubber tips on the bottoms of chrome chair legs fit a small washer down inside each one and they will not wear out so soon. Otherwise they have to be replaced every couple years. Your pecan pie was simply delicious. — VIRGINIA.

DEAR VIRGINIA — Thanks for your letter but I am afraid I cannot conscientiously take the compliment for the pecan pie. I believe you have mistaken its source as I read a recipe in one of the advice to the lovelorn columns just before the holidays. I do put mine up against hers and hope you try it.

Polly's quick and easy pecan pie: The ingredients are two eggs, one-half cup white sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup light Karo syrup, one teaspoon vanilla and one cup pecans.

Gradually add the sugar and salt to the two whole eggs that have been beaten until light and fluffy. Keep beating as they are added and continue beating while adding the syrup and then the vanilla. Pour into uncooked pie shell. Sprinkle pecans on top. Bake in 350-degree oven until filling is firmly set, which is usually about 45 minutes. But check frequently after 30 minutes. — POLLY.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea. Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Vary that meat loaf recipe

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Fans of meat loaf are legion. Everyone seems to have a favorite way to make a meat loaf. It often is a faithful repetition of a recipe handed down from mother or grandmother. Such a handed-down recipe heads the most-favored list because of the nostalgia the flavor recalls every time it is served. For a variation on such a standby, substitute some different ingredients such as wheat germ and garlic salt. Serve with a Roquefort or Blue cheese sauce for a completely new meat-loaf sensation. This combination is very good hot and also makes a tasty cold sandwich.

MEAT LOAF WITH ROQUEFORT SAUCE
2 pounds lean ground beef
¾ cup toasted wheat germ
½ cup finely chopped onion
1-3rd cup milk
2 eggs
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Roquefort Sauce
Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Press mixture firmly into 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour or until done. Let stand in pan 10 minutes. Invert onto serving plate. Serve hot or cold with Roquefort Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

ROQUEFORT SAUCE
Combine ½ cup sour cream, ½ cup salad dressing and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Stir in ½ cup (2 ounces) crumbled Roquefort or Blue cheese. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

He also discussed activities at the not-for-profit facility where meals, house-keeping service, laundry service and entertaining programs are provided.

Mrs. W. L. Stitzel Jr. presided at the refreshment table arranged by the hostesses for a social hour.

Whatever dish you prepare, save effort and dollars by first reading recipe instructions carefully. Then assemble all ingredients and equipment and follow the recipe exactly — don't estimate or guess as you measure.

Jettison honor to stay afloat

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Jettison is a nautical term that applies to throwing cargo overboard to lighten a sinking ship. In bridge you jettison a winning card to get it out of the way for some valid reason.

We are indebted to George Coffin for today's jettison play. A very careless South wins the club lead with his king and plays a trump. East takes his ace and can beat the contract by leading a second club for his partner to ruff.

A slightly more careful South wins the club in dummy and leads a trump toward his own hand. If East plays low everything comes up roses, but if East hops up with the ace South's king of clubs gets ruffed.

A careful South remembers that opening club bid and worries about a club ruff. Then he rises with dummy's ace of clubs, jettisons his king of clubs on the ace of diamonds and leads dummy's deuce of spades.

Now all the defenders can collect are two hearts and the ace of spades, since South can ruff the second club if it is led.

BROILED PEACHES

Drain canned cling peach slices and place cut side up in shallow baking dish. Broil about 3 inches from heat about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, blend ¼ cup parmesan cheese, ½ cup mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon chopped canned green chili or ½ teaspoon chili powder. Serve over peaches.

MARJORIE MEAD, University of Illinois Extension Clothing and Textiles Specialist, (left) demonstrates for a university student one way to use a colorful scarf as an accessory. "A high-quality garment of conservative style is a sound clothing investment," the specialist says. "And it is another way to stretch clothing dollars. Such garments can be quite versatile when accessorized with scarfs, pins, hats or necklaces, that give a basic garment a totally different look."

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: It's too late for us, especially for my mother. She already has had a nervous breakdown, but I hope this letter will be published and perhaps it might spare others the grief we are now suffering.

Dad passed away last month. He was a great person, successful in everything he did, highly respected in the community. My mother and we kids worshipped him.

The day before the funeral we were going through Dad's personal belongings and found a metal box. It was locked and we had to pry it open. We found photographs that I will never forget as long as I live. There is no question they were taken during the last few years of his life, perhaps months.

Dad had posed nude with several other men and women. There were even pictures of him involved in the sex act. We didn't know any of the people in the photographs. It was apparent he had a secret life we knew nothing about.

If any person who reads your column has such damning evidence "hidden away," please, for God's sake, get rid of it. You never know when your time will come. It could be tomorrow. — Scarred Forever

Dear Friend: If your mother has had a nervous breakdown she is, I assume, under the care of a psychiatrist. He will explain to her that your father was a sick man—very sick. His ability to lead two completely different lives is a symptom of a severe personality disorder.

When your mother and you children accept this fact the hurt will be greatly diminished. You will then feel compassion for your father rather than disgust and betrayal. I hope it happens soon.

Dear Ann Landers: Do tell the woman who complained about her husband because he couldn't remember to put the toilet seat down that she doesn't have much of a problem. Honest she doesn't.

She should have MINE. The jerk I'm married to is too lazy to lift the seat in the first place. Now THAT'S a problem.—Busier Than I Ought To Be

Dear Busier: One of the comforting aspects of this column is that people don't realize how well off they are until they read what somebody else has to put up with.

Thanks for writing, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: No big deal, but the problem has caused so much trouble we've agreed to dump it on Ann Landers. Here it is:

Situation: Out-of-town bowling tournaments. Team member with newest car takes the whole bunch on the trips.

How should the expenses be divided? I say the cost of the gas and oil should be divided among the passengers, excluding the owner of the car. After all, he is furnishing the vehicle on which he must pay insurance, not to mention the wear and tear on the tires, etc. What do you say, Ann?—I Want Justice In Omaha

Dear Just: In my opinion, the party who furnishes the car is making the greatest contribution and should not be expected to chip in for gas and oil.

Confidential to In a Crisis: The Chinese word for "crisis" is divided into two characters. One means danger, the other means opportunity. Recognize the dangers involved in the existing situation but don't overlook the opportunity to change your life-style for something far more productive and rewarding.

Don't overlook the beauty of cacti

By JANET TARA

Succulents and cacti fall into a separate category because they function differently than other household plants. They store water in their stems and leaves to help them through long dry spells. Therefore they are ideal for sunny, dry conditions, which are found in many homes and apartments.

They prefer being watered about half as much as other plants and would probably be better off if you "forgot" to water them once in a while.

Cacti need very infrequent waterings in the winter, just enough to keep their foliage from shrinking—perhaps once every two weeks. In the spring to fall, once or twice a week is good or whenever the soil is very dry. Water only on sunny days when the moisture can be absorbed.

Both succulents and cacti are slow but steady growers and need little attention. They are often passed over by people who prefer the lavish greenery of long, lush leaves, but they have a quiet lasting beauty that should not be overlooked.

Let's Talk About Decorating

By BEVERLY CAPON

Tips for Good Decorating

When decorating your bedroom, keep in mind that the paths between the entry door, dresser and closet are the most traveled areas in the room. Leave this area free of furniture. Remember that a bedroom should reflect the personality of those using it. If there aren't photographs or personal items around the room, it will look like a sterile motel room.

be comfortable, fabrics should be soft. If you have two conversation groupings in one room, make one larger and colorful than the other.

We at Dunbar's will be glad to help you select the styles that are just right for your home and your budget. Stop in and talk with one of us today. We have great browsing areas too. Come in, you're always welcome at Dunbar's.

MOUNTING BURDEN OF TAXES

All Taxes—Federal, State and Local—as a Share of National Income in U.S.

In three decades:

The tax take in the United States is nearly nine times what it was in 1944, climbing from a total of $48 billion, or 26 per cent of the national income, to $423 billion, or 37 per cent of national income in 1974. A cut in federal income taxes this year may slow or halt the increase in the tax burden—but fast-rising state and local taxes point to resumption of boosts in the tax load in years ahead. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce)

Special tax rules govern capital gains and losses

Taxation of gains and losses from the sales of capital assets is governed by special rules, says Commerce Clearing House, a national reporting authority on tax and business law. Capital assets include many types of property, such as stocks and bonds, personal residences, household furnishings, and personal automobiles.

Here are some of these special rules work. First of all, it should be noted that gains realized from the sales of the above types of property are nearly always taxed to the seller. One exception is the gain from the sale of a personal residence. The tax on such gain is postponed if the taxpayer purchases a new residence within one year before or after the sale of the old residence at a cost that is higher than the sales price of the old residence.

On the other hand, losses from the sales of many types of capital assets are not recognized for income tax purposes. These include losses from the sales of personal assets such as a residence, car, home furnishings, etc. It should be pointed out, however, that if any such asset is stolen or destroyed in a casualty, such as a fire, the loss is deductible—but only if the taxpayer itemizes his personal deductions on Schedule B of Form 1040. Stocks and bonds and other investment property do not fall within the non-recognition-of-loss rules. Losses on these assets are deductible, subject to certain limitations explained below, and can be claimed even though the taxpayer does not itemize his deductions.

If the asset was held for six months or less, any gain or loss is termed a short-term capital gain or loss. If the asset was held for more than six months, any gain or loss is a long-term gain or loss.

A 50 per cent deduction is allowed for the excess of a net long-term capital gain over a net short-term capital loss. The alternative tax computation in Part VI of Schedule D, Form 1040—the "capital gains tax"—has the effect of limiting the tax on each $1 of the excess of net long-term capital gains over net short-term capital losses to a maximum of 35 cents. The tax on each $1 of the first $50,000 ($25,000 for a married taxpayer filing separately) of the excess is limited to 25 cents.

The benefits that a taxpayer with large capital gains may get through capital gains transactions may be reduced by the 10 per cent Minimum Tax. This tax is imposed on tax preference items, one of which is the amount allowable to an individual by the 50 per cent capital gains deduction, even if he uses the alternative capital gains tax.

Whenever the ordinary income reaches a level where any part is in a bracket over 50 per cent, a computation should be made to determine whether the alternative tax results in a lower tax.

Losses of an individual from sales or exchanges of capital assets are deductible to the extent of capital gains plus up to $1,000 of ordinary income. A short-term capital loss or a long-term capital loss carry-over from a pre-1970 year can nevertheless offset ordinary income up to the $1,000 limit on a dollar for dollar basis.

After this $1,000 is used up, any unused net capital losses remaining may be carried over indefinitely to future years until exhausted.

Sports concessionaire may lose $2 million in Illinois business

CHICAGO (AP) — Emprise Corp., the world's largest sports concessionaire, may lose its estimated $2 million worth of business in Illinois, the executive director of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission says.

Thomas J. Murphy said Sunday in an interview that he submitted a report to the commission last week "that concludes that the corporation has not taken steps to rehabilitate itself."

The commission asked for the report this month when it reaffirmed a July 1973 citation to revoke the liquor licenses of the company's Illinois subsidiaries.

Emprise operates the concessions at White Sox Park, the Chicago Stadium and the racetracks at Cahokia Downs and Maywood Park.

The citations came after Emprise's 1972 felony conviction in California on federal charges of gambling and racketeering. That conviction was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

which recently refused to hear the case.

Murphy said that Illinois law "clearly prohibits felons who have not been rehabilitated from holding a state liquor license."

But attorney Robert F. Hanley, who represents the Emprise subsidiaries, said Sunday the California conviction was "irrelevant because the Illinois licensees were convicted of nothing."

Hanley also said that "all of the acts upon which the conviction was based occurred during the lifetime of Louis Jacobs, who was very much in control of the company."

Noting that Jacobs' sons, Jeremy and Max, gained control of the firm after their father's death in 1968, Hanley said, "Even if this (the California conviction) was just, I can't believe the Illinois Liquor Control Commission wishes to visit the sins of the father on the sons and grandsons forever."

A final hearing before the commission is set for March 3.

At that time, Murphy said arguments for revocation will include specific incidents of how Emprise hasn't changed its practices. The examples will include findings of adulterated liquor at one concession and other liquor violations at another concession, he said.

In addition, Murphy charged that Emprise has violated Illinois' cash beer law by as much as $200,000. The law requires a person or business selling beer to pay for the beverage the same day it is received.

Hanley, however, termed the examples "very technical violations which take place all the time...and the charges of adulterated liquor were never substantiated and were dropped."

Asked if a decision against

Emprise in Illinois might set a precedent for action in other states, Murphy said, "A number of states have been conducting investigations. And while statutes vary in different states, revocation of the licenses here could set a precedent."

The company has been investigated in New York, Missouri, Arkansas, Oregon and California. Oakland A's Owner Charles O. Finley won a lawsuit in California, contending that the company holds a monopoly. That court decision has been appealed, while the Illinois Supreme Court overturned a similar antitrust suit.

Emprise, with a gross revenue of about $100 million a year, is based in Buffalo, N.Y., and holds liquor licenses in some 25 states and the District of Columbia.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE C-680: Hannah B., aged 22, teaches high school civics.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "at our state university last year, when I was an undergraduate, we used your textbook, 'Psychology Applied.'"

"And I enjoyed your stress on 'Efficiency Engineering as Applied to Government.'"

"But since I am now graduated and earning a salary, I am facing the headaches of computing my income tax and groaning at the boondoggling in Congress."

"So please give me some good topics for debate by my students, who are now being asked to talk before Kiwanis, Rotary, etc."

Uncle Sam is certainly very sick and rapidly growing worse.

To restore him to the vigor with which our Founding Fathers endowed him, follow this prescription:

(1) Disfranchise all welfare recipients now riding the backs of the producing taxpayers.

This would free both Democratic and Republican Congressmen from the voter "blackmail" by "inner city" relievers.

At present, they demand larger ADC and welfare checks from Democratic candidates or they'll vote Republican; then use similar threats on the Republicans, till both parties keep zooming the handouts of our taxes.

(2) Limit the term of the President to six years and don't permit a second term.

(3) Expand the term of U.S. Representatives to four years from the present two, but have half of them elected every two years, much as one-third of the U.S. Senators are also elected every two years.

Now we get only one good year out of a Representative, for the second year he is back home much of the time "mending fences" for his re-election.

Under the four-year term, we'd get three years of good work out of him!

(4) Insist that no Supreme Court ruling could be valid unless three-fourths (75 per cent of the nine justices) concurred.

This means at least seven of the nine must agree, for our Founding Fathers insisted our Constitution should not be changed by less than 75 per cent of the states (38 at present) so we should not let our Constitution be altered by more "interpretive" opinions of less than 75 per cent of the Supreme Court Justices!

(5) Synchronize all mayoral, governor and other city and state elections to occur every two years and in conjunction with our national elections.

This would insure a maximum turnout, and thus reduce the influence of the "Machines."

It would also save millions of dollars now spent for manning the polling places all those extra times.

(6) Limit service in the Senate and also the House to a maximum of 12 years, thus topping the "dynasty" reign of men who have been there 30 to 40 years.

(7) Take Uncle Sam out of competition with private, tax-paying businesses.

This means, farm out the Postal Service to private bidders and stop the 700 other government corporations now competing with private firms.

(8) Move our national capital westward, as to Colorado.

(9) Free mediums of public education, as newspapers, TV and Radio, from federal registration and threats of license revocation.

(10) Farm out Social Security to private, tax-paying insurance firms, which would almost double what recipients now get at age 65.

Send for my booklet "How to Save Our Republic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Channel Seven to show 'Joey's world tonight

A film entitled "Joey's World" will be shown this evening on Channel Seven at 7 p.m., immediately following Sports Scene on Seven.

The film is about 7-year-old Joey, who lives a carefree existence. He rides on attractions at an amusement park, chases a ball on the beach, runs freely in open fields, plays with his toys in his modern electric home. In contrast, the narrator comments on the alarming conditions existing in the world and warns the unhearing boy that his generation will have to act to preserve it: Familiar energy sources are running out; many metals are in short supply; noise, air, and water pollution increase; the balances of life are being upset.

Scenes illustrating these facts are intercut with Joey's happy world of play emphasizing that by the time Joey grows up, realistic solutions must be implemented and everyone must contribute.

Card of Thanks

Many thanks to relatives and friends for their prayers, cards, gifts and flowers while I was a patient at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago. Also a special thanks to the teachers and students of Amboy Junior High for their many cards and letters. These acts of kindness will be remembered.

Christine Bodmer

I wish to thank my many friends for cards, gifts, flowers, visits and prayers while at Rockford Memorial Hospital and the Orchard Glen Nursing Home; to Dr. Hagman, Rockford, to nurses and aides at both hospitals; to Rev. Schumm and to my Sunday School pupils who made cards and sent them to me.

'1776' chosen as DHS musical

The musical production for the 15th annual Dixon High School show will be "1776" by Peter Stone and Sherman Edwards. This is a most fitting production in celebrating the anniversary of one of our country's greatest historical events.

The dates of the production are May 1, 2 and 3. The casting will occur in the second week of March and the tickets will go on sale in April. DeVoe Manning, the drama coach, and Jim Wiltz, the choral director, both feel that this show should be very meaningful to our community.

The prize winning "1776" has established itself as one of America's best loved musicals and its popularity has not waned since its first season.

Other stories in the news

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A bomb the size of a shoebox was found today in a department store in downtown Decatur, police said.

Police disarmed the device and carried it out the store before the building was opened to the public. They said they took it out of town to be detonated.

Authorities said they were alerted to the existence of the bomb by an anonymous telephone caller.

The device was found inside a shoebox on the stairs on the fifth floor of the Carson, Pirie, Scott store.

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter says he plans to enter all of the Democratic presidential primary elections in 1976.

Carter, 50, one of five Democrats to formally announce their candidacies for the party's presidential nomination, said Monday that he plans to campaign 250 days this year alone at a cost of about $500,000.

By the Democratic National Convention in 1976, Carter said at a news conference he plans to spend about $10 million, including matching funds from the federal income tax checkoff fund.

New Hampshire's primary is the first presidential stop next year about 13 months away. Twenty-six other primaries are scheduled after that primary and some other states also are considering primary elections.

MOSCOW (AP) — Khaf La-suria, one of the oldest women in the world, has died in the Caucasus mountains at the age of 139, Tass reported today.

The official Soviet news agency said she lived in the Georgian village of Kutol and is survived by more than 100 grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

The Caucasus region between the Black and Caspian seas is noted for the longevity of its people.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Procrustean Club of America was angered by the early celebration of George Washington's birthday.

So the club picked Monday to celebrate the birthday of Millard Fillmore, the nation's 13th president, who was born Jan. 7, 1800.

"We wouldn't mind if Lincoln's Birthday were celebrated Feb. 17 (he was born on Feb. 12), but we resent the idea of celebrating Washington's birthday ahead of time," said chapter president Les Waas.

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Heart Association says it will provide a record $17 million for the year beginning July 1 for more than 1,400 scientists studying heart and blood vessel diseases.

The association's board of directors said Monday it had increased the funds and the number of its investigators from 115 to 146 because of reduced government research training programs.

Since 1949, the association has made cardiovascular research awards totaling more than $240 million.

NEW YORK (AP) — CARE, the worldwide relief organization, has announced a campaign against the global food crisis that is claiming more than 10,000 lives daily from starvation.

CARE said Monday it was asking that all Americans skip or reduce one meal a week and send the money saved to the aid agency. It said it is currently feeding more than 20 million persons a day around the world.

Money and pledges should be sent to CARE World Hunger Fund, New York 10016, or to regional offices.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Museum of Art has bought a major 1918 Picasso painting, "Harlequin with Violin."

Museum officials declined to reveal the purchase price, but a spokesman said $1 million "would not be inappropriate."

"This is a major masterpiece in the most important style of the 20th Century, by a major artist of the 20th century and by the man who invented the style," said Edward Henning, curator of modern art.

The painting is 39 1/2 inches wide and 56 inches high. Predominant black, white and gray in the cubist composition is relieved with harlequin hues of red, yellow and blue.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Economy cars are in big demand everywhere, even among car thieves.

Within one hour Monday night, thieves made off with five late model Mercury Cougars and four similar Ford Mustangs from this suburban Boston community.

WEST CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities continued to investigate today the death of a 15-year-old boy whose mutilated body was found Sunday night in the basement of a West Chicago alderman's home.

The youth was identified as Dean Tarry, who lived with his divorced mother in West Chicago, authorities said.

He was found Sunday night in the home of Ald. Bruce Diershaw, 38.

Diershaw said he was summoned home Sunday night from a bowling tournament by his mother, Ida, 75, who found a trail of blood which led from the kitchen to the basement.

Footprints were found outside leading to a broken basement window, leading authorities to believe a burglary may have been attempted.

The boy suffered about 50 cuts on his head and additional cuts on his neck, back and hands, authorities said. Several blood-stained items apparently were used as weapons, they said.

Ski outing Saturday

The Dixon "Y" Ski Club has completed plans to ski Devils-head Saturday. This outing will be the first out-of-state trip ever planned for the group, which now numbers more than 300 active members. While the group had planned to travel by bus for all out of state trips, the Interstate Commerce Commission has placed restrictions on local carriers which makes it impossible for non-profit groups to go beyond state lines. The group will leave by car from the "Y" parking lot at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday and will return late Saturday evening.

All club members are asked to register at the "Y" for the trip before 9 p.m. Thursday.

Drive against overweight trucks is stepped up

A truck being weighed by Illinois State Police in 1925.

STERLING— Captain Dave L. Pearson, State Police District Commander for the five-county area included in District 1, today announced figures which indicate that the State Police in District 1 weighed a total of 210,235 trucks during 1974 at scale installations. As a result of their efforts, 784 tickets for violation of weight restrictions were issued.

Since 1922, when the first eight men were appointed as state policemen, the Illinois State Police has been charged with the responsibility for a continuing comprehensive weight enforcement program. That program has evolved to the point that they now operate a total of 33 truck weighing stations throughout Illinois.

The total number of trucks weighed each year has increased steadily. In 1974, there were over five million vehicles weighed. Of those, 21,702 trucks were issued arrest tickets for being overloaded. Dwight E. Pitman, superintendent of the Illinois State Police said, "The Road Fund of the Illinois State Treasury received $2,489,944.59 in fines collected by the courts from overweight trucks during the 12 months of 1974. This represents more than 16 times the amount in fines collected just 10 years ago. I think this speaks well for us when it is considered that our efforts in recent years have been hampered by an increase in demands for police service and relatively small number of civilian weight inspectors."

Faced with increasingly rapid deterioration of Chicago's expressways, deterioration due in large measure to overweight trucks, the Illinois State Police in December of 1973 assigned a special detail of troopers to weigh vehicles suspected of carrying excessive loads. In one year, these troopers stopped and weighed 3,942 vehicles; 1,648 were found to be in violation. Over $731,000 was posted in bond.

Bugs on phones in Springfield

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — The Rockford Morning Star and Quad Cities Times reported today that at least three of the four electronic bugs detected in Springfield last week are located on telephones.

The newspapers said Edward Kirby, an electronics expert from Oak Park, said he overheard telephone conversations on three of the four devices while he was checking for bugs in the offices of state comptroller George Lindberg February 8.

Kirby reported that he detected four electronic devices located somewhere in the State Capitol Complex of buildings around Lindberg's office, but he found no devices in the comptroller's offices in Chicago or Springfield.

"I'd say definitely that three of the four bugs are on phones," Kirby told the two newspapers in an interview Monday.

Kirby reacted with anger at charges leveled by some persons that he should have found the bugs he detected.

"Those are ludicrous statements," he said. "We weren't remiss in any respect. We made a report to the person who hired us. Our assignment was to Lindberg, not the City of Springfield or the State of Illinois."

Kirby was paid $1,500 to check Lindberg's offices, an aide said.

Meanwhile, the FBI, which had been asked to look into the situation by Gov. Daniel Walker, said Monday that it has not received Kirby's report yet and will probably have to confer with its Washington office to determine if the agency should take on the investigation.

Walker's road proposals are announced

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker has listed the highway projects which would be started within the next two years if the Illinois General Assembly approves his proposed accelerated building program.

Walker said Monday the roads he chose were the worst in the state, except that "where selections had to be made among a number of bad roads and bridges, those with the most immediate impact on severe unemployment areas were chosen."

The 237 projects listed called for improving or reconstructing 850 miles of highway and 94 bridges at a total cost of more than $180 million.

No projects in the Chicago area were announced. Walker said they and additional downstate projects would be announced later.

In addition to road work, Walker's program calls for stepped-up construction and rehabilitation of mental health facilities, park and recreation areas, and school buildings.

Among the major road projects listed were:

—$2.7 million for 13.9 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 64 from the Ogle County Line in DeKalb County to Sycamore.

—$3.5 million for 17 miles of widening and resurfacing in Rock Island County on Illinois 84 from Albany to Interstate 80.

—$2.3 million for 11.8 miles of widening and resurfacing between Illinois 75 and Edwardsville Road in Seward and in Winnebago County.

—$2.2 million for 9.5 miles of widening and resurfacing of three bridges between U.S. 30 and the Carroll County Line in Whiteside County.

—$2.4 million for 5.29 miles of widening and resurfacing of Illinois 23 and reconstruction of three bridges in Livingston County.

—$2.2 million for 11.98 miles of widening and resurfacing from Seneca to Illinois 17 in LaSalle County.

—$1.3 million for 8.7 miles of resurfacing on Illinois 41 between Galesburg and Abingdon.

—$1.45 million for adding a mile of lanes to Illinois 174 between University Street and Illinois 88 in Peoria County.

—$2.4 million for 12.9 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 121 between Sullivan and Mattoon.

—$2.1 million for 23.4 miles of resurfacing on Illinois 16 between Illinois 316 and Illinois 133 in Edgar and Coles counties.

—$3 million for 15.8 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 10 between Mason City and Interstate 55 near Lincoln.

—$2.5 million for 12.9 miles of widening and resurfacing between Augusta and Littleton on Illinois 101 in Hancock and Schuyler counties.

—$3.3 million for 18.43 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 185 between Brownstown and Farina in Fayette County.

—$2.2 million for 17.8 miles of resurfacing on Illinois 130 between Newton and Olney.

—$3 million for 10.5 miles of resurfacing on Illinois 3 between 20th Street in Granite City and Interstate 70.

—$2.2 million for 9 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 100 from Illinois 16 to Pere Marquette State Park in Jersey County.

—$3.1 million for 6.7 miles of widening and resurfacing on Illinois 3 between Illinois 149 at Grimsby to Grand Tower.

—$1.6 million for reconstructing 8 bridges and a railroad crossing on Illinois 34 from Benton to Harrisburg.

Square-pistoned engine unveiled

CHICAGO (AP) — A young inventor has unveiled a working prototype of an engine design with square pistons which he claims will solve some of the major drawbacks of rotary engines.

The rotary engine was unveiled Monday by Marek J. Lassota, 28, a former student at the Warsaw Institute of Technology. The prototype was built by the Institute of Gas Technology, where Lassota is a faculty member.

Unlike the Wankel rotary engine, Lassota's machine has pistons which move back and forth like a reciprocating engine. But the pistons and combustion chamber form a unit that rotates.

The prototype is a two-cycle internal combustion engine with a displacement of 250 cubic centimeters that uses spark plugs and gasoline.

Lassota said square geometry makes the engine much simpler to maintain lasting seals for the combustion chamber to prevent leakage of the high-pressure and high-temperature combustion gases. He said sealing was a major problem of the Wankel rotary.

He said another advantage of the engine is that it can use cheap materials such as cast iron to seal combustion chambers.

"The development of sealing materials for Wankel rotaries costs millions of dollars and even yet results are not fully satisfactory," Lassota said.

Lassota said emission hasn't been fully tested.

"We just want to run it now, but its better efficiency should make it cleaner than the Wankel," he said. "To build two or three prototypes for cars and put them on the road for testing would take from 1½ to 2 years at a cost of $1.5 to $2.5 million."

Joseph C. Michelotti, Lassota's counsel, said, "General Motors' new ideas group has seen the new rotary engine and has not rejected it. The other major auto companies do not seem to be as interested."

The Wankel rotary isn't used in any American car. Chevrolet originally scheduled a rotary for one of its models but decided against it.

Home gardeners start early

Seed business is booming

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer

With the icy grip of winter still on much of the land, home gardeners are ordering seeds for spring planting in record numbers.

Officials from the nation's largest seed and nursery companies say last year's boom in home gardening is bigger than ever in 1975 and that they can hardly keep up with the demand.

"If you can eat it, you don't have enough of it. That's the new general rule in this industry," said Keith Price, marketing manager for the Gurney Seed and Nursery Co. of Yankton, S.D.

"We're getting earlier orders and larger orders than ever before," said Alice Gillette of the R.H. Shumway Co. of Rockford, Ill., "normally, our busy season is just starting."

"We're facing an intense demand in our vegetable lines," said Jerry Kantor, assistant to the president of the Burpee Seed Co. of Philadelphia. "We're running 20 per cent or more ahead of last year, which was a record year, and we don't expect to hit our peak until late February or March."

All three officials attributed their record sales in 1974 to soaring supermarket food prices. Sales of flower seeds have remained relatively stable, they said.

"We're just seeing this year an intensification of what started to happen last year," said Kantor. "Despite the talk of a recession there's no doubt that inflationary pressures still exist, and food costs are going up and up."

The three firms mail out millions of seed and nursery catalogs each year.

Price said Gurney expects to ship more than a million pounds of seeds to gardeners throughout the nation in 1975, a quantity which would fill more than two dozen semi-trailer trucks.

"Mostly we're selling tomatoes, corn, beans, carrots and peas, the stuff a beginning gardener is likely to grow. We're seeing a tremendous increase in new gardens, as well as larger orders from old customers," Price said.

Price said his firm is also selling record numbers of fruit trees, despite the fact that they usually take three to four years to begin bearing fruit.

"We've got a number of orders for fruit trees," said Mrs. Gillette. "You name it, if it's edible, we're probably shipping it in record numbers."

Making her mark in a field usually shunned by women

CHICAGO (AP) — Working in a complex field long considered by men a no-woman's land, Patti Meyers has learned to cope — to the tune of more than $20,000 in sales commissions last year.

Her product is phototypesetting and electronic editing equipment, which she demonstrates and sells for the Addressograph Multigraph Corp.

Some customers always have initial doubts about her knowledge of the industry, she said. "They try to quiz me and keep thinking I'll have to call in help at some point. But I never have. There is a lot of homework before making a sales call and even more preparing for follow up calls."

With her product's cost ranging from $25,000 to $50,000, she makes one or two sales a month. Her territory is downtown Chicago, and her customers include the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, American Can Co. and Inland Steel Co.

Ms. Meyers, who majored in psychology and English at Ohio State, said that as a woman entering the business world, she "encountered the inequalities as something of a shock. You learn to cope, although it may be hard to understand why you have to."

Her looks — she was an Air Force ROTC queen at Ohio State — may have made coping a little easier. But with customers, she said, "I establish the point early that we are on a strictly business footing and when I start talking technicalities, they know it's business."

She has found that talking with customers about her outside interests — she has a pilot's license and is a hockey and formula auto racing fan — can help make an opening.

While coping in the business world is one thing, Ms. Meyers doesn't consider being a woman a handicap. In fact, she said, she thinks women in her field can demonstrate enthusiasm more openly than men.

What she considers her biggest challenge is a problem that confronts anyone in sales, including her male competitors from seven different companies. It is "understanding illogical people. They are people who recognize need, recognize inherent benefits, can afford the product — but still won't buy."

Bees increase soybean yields

MADISON, Wis. — Honey bees may pollinate soybeans and increase yields of some varieties while other varieties are scarcely affected. Scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS) are studying this phenomenon in the hope of learning to employ honey bees more productively on soybeans — one of the Nation's major crops.

Soybeans, which are usually self-pollinated, were previously thought to benefit little from the bees' visitations. However, ARS entomologist Eric H. Erickson, here, observed that in caged soybean plots, bees increased yields of Corsoy and Hark varieties by 14 and 16 percent, respectively. Dr. Erickson says other soybeans may be found that benefit even more from bee pollination.

Now, in cooperation with the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station, Dr. Erickson is screening several hundred varieties and breeding lines of soybeans for their attractiveness to honey bees and for their potential for sustaining higher yields through bee pollination. Cataloging these soybeans, while taking into account other economically desirable qualities, will help plant breeders as they develop new varieties.

The research will especially enhance breeding programs that require use of hybridization, a process that was recently made feasible for soybeans through a discovery by ARS agronomist Charles A. Brim and his colleagues at the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station, Raleigh. That team discovered a male-sterility characteristic in soybeans which they used to develop a male-sterile line. Yet, without the bee's help, soybean hybridization requires tedious, expensive and time-consuming hand pollination.

With the bee's help, hybrid soybean seed may some day be used for growing soybeans commercially, as well as for plant breeding, if hybrids prove to have yield advantages. With a view toward improving the efficiency in which hybrid seed may be produced, Dr. Erickson is studying basic behavioral characteristics of honey bees and the possibility of breeding them to prefer visiting soybean flowers more dependably than most bees do now.

In his comparisons of three soybean varieties — Corsoy, Chippewa 64 and Hark — he noted that the bees foraged nectar most frequently from Hark soybeans, which have showy flowers. At pollination time, these flowers are nearly always open with pollen and stigmas exposed. (The stigma is a part of the flower that is fertilized with pollen.) Hark soybeans also produced the greatest amount of nectar and that nectar contained a higher percentage of dissolved solids than nectar from alfalfa.

The bees picked up no measureable amounts of pollen from Chippewa 64 soybeans. Accordingly, they did not improve soybean yields of that variety. Apparently, the Chippewa 64 soybeans were self-fertilized even though their flowers never opened, Dr. Erickson said, adding that this characteristic is called cleistogamy.

Chippewa 64 and a genetically similar variety, Clark, are probably not cleistogamous in the southern part of the Midwest, Dr. Erickson says. In Wisconsin, one or two days of warm weather may cause them to give up their cleistogamy. Soil conditions may also affect the characteristic.

FFA week underway

Illinois Governor Dan Walker recently proclaimed February 15-22 as Illinois FFA Week. Walker said, "More than 17,000 forward-looking young men and women in Illinois are actively preparing themselves for leadership in the development of our agricultural economy and the building of a better state."

Walker said that the Future Farmers of America are finding "A Chance For Growth," the theme for National FFA Week, in the organization's varied programs.

"Oriented to rural activities, FFA Chapters are organized in connection with vocational agriculture classes and are designed to build leadership qualities in young people. By combining FFA experience with vocational agriculture classwork and on-the-job training, members become competent businessmen and women willing to assume their rightful responsibilities in their communities, state, and nation."

The Illinois FFA was organized in 1928 to teach improved farm production practices to farm youth. But as the agriculture industry grew, so did the FFA. Members can now prepare for careers in agribusiness as well as farming.

FFA members can be found in 49 states and Puerto Rico. More than 465,000 members follow the motto: Learning To Do, Doing To Learn, Earning To Live, Living To Serve.

Outlook '75 crucial to farmers

SPRINGFIELD — State Agriculture Director Robert J. "Pud" Williams said that decisions made at the upcoming Farm Outlook '75 conference could be critically important for the economic well-being of farmers and the continued productivity of their land.

Williams announced Farm Outlook '75, to be held Feb. 19 at the Illinois Building on the State Fairgrounds in Springfield, amid increasing calls among farmers and farm groups for voluntary cutbacks in production.

The director said he would take the results of the conference to Washington next week for discussions with members of Congress and officials of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, as well as representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture. Department officials have prepared materials for an intensive survey for the conference, he said.

"We all have to know what our food policy is going to be so we can work together on this to help solve the country's economic problems while continuing to provide for the world's food needs," Williams said.

Applications being taken for leadership forum

AMBOY — Applications are being accepted in the Extension office from volunteer leaders in Lee County to attend the National Leaders' Forum, March 24-28 in Washington, D.C. says Kathy Augustine, Lee County Extension Adviser.

The Illinois 4-H Foundation is making scholarships available to a limited number of leaders to cover the cost of the conference, but applications must be received by March 3 to be considered.

Fred Haegle, University of Illinois assistant 4-H program leader, who will accompany the group to Washington, says the Forum provides the opportunity for local 4-H leaders to meet with other leaders, share ideas and visit points of interest in the nation's capital. Lee County leaders who have attended previously are: Mrs. Harold Wright, Dixon; Mrs. Art Pendergast, Sublette, and Mrs. Ralph Pritchard, Harmon.

Feeders group to hold meet

The Lee County Livestock Feeders Association will hold the annual business dinner meeting Thursday at 6:30 p.m., in the Lee County Farm Bureau Building in Amboy.

Lew DeGraff, executive secretary of the Illinois Livestock Feeders Association, will discuss association progress and future goals with regard to the livestock industry in Illinois.

Also, Carl Rylander of Interstate Producers Livestock Association of Peoria, will discuss the future trend in fed cattle and the future feeder cattle prices.

All Lee County members are asked to attend and those who are livestock producers who are not members are also invited.

There is no admission charge for either the dinner or the program.

The annual banquet will be held March 6 in Loveland Community House in Dixon.

The Lee County president is Cecil Harrison, Amboy, and Clark E. Scholl, Polo, serves as secretary.

The idea, Haegle says, is to equip the leaders with the tools they need to inspire youth and strengthen the Illinois 4-H program. Studying and living with other leaders in the capital for a week kindles a spirit and enthusiasm that communicates itself to both youth and adults when the leader returns home, he adds.

Forum programs are tailored to meet the needs of individuals attending and the programs keep participants busy. But there is still time to visit their congressman and see national shrines and memorials. Additional information is available from the Lee County Extension Service, Box 119, Amboy, or phone 857-3525.

Indiana keeps first, Oregon drops out

By The Associated Press
Indiana maintained its stranglehold on first, Kentucky took a bit of a tumble, Centenary joined the select circle and Oregon nosedived out of it, according to The Associated Press College Basketball Poll released today.

The Hoosiers, who mauled Minnesota 69-54 and nailed Northwestern 82-58 last week-end to raise their record to 24-0, once again remained first in the hearts and ballots of the national panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Indiana received all 45 first-place votes for 900 points.

UCLA's Bruins, who made short work of Oregon 95-66 and Oregon State 74-62 for a 19-2 mark, stayed No. 2 with 800 points and Maryland held third with 716 following a 96-74 clubbing of North Carolina that put the Terps' record at 18-3.

North Carolina State, 18-3, jumped up a spot to fourth with 576 points after beating Virginia and Wake Forest while Alabama, 19-2, skipped over two places to fifth with 495 points by scoring triumphs over Mississippi State and Mississippi.

Louisville, 18-2 after a thumping of Drake, stayed sixth with 489 points but Kentucky's Wildcats, 18-3, fell from fourth to seventh with 376 after a split weekend—a shellacking of Auburn and a five-point loss to Tennessee.

The remainder of the Top Ten stood pat—Arizona State, 19-2, eighth with 369 points, Marquette, 17-3, ninth with 308 and Southern California, 15-5, 10th with 159.

In the Second Ten, Notre Dame vaulted up from 16th to 11th with 130 points after three victories last week including the nationally televised 91-75 pasting of LaSalle.

Pennsylvania moved from 14th to 12th with 129 points, North Carolina slipped two spots to 13th and Creighton sailed up from 20th to 14th place. Arizona also made solid headway, jumping four spots to 15th and Clemson improved by two to 16th. The victim of all that shuffling was LaSalle, which dropped five places to 17th.

Centenary, with a 22-3 record, made its first appearance in the Top Twenty, showing up in 18th, Pan American dropped from 15th to 19th and Oregon State rounded out the poll in 20th.

Oregon's Ducks, who had owned 13th place a week ago, were battered by UCLA, edged by Southern Cal and shoved out of the rankings.

Just one more 'A' week

By MIKE CUNIFF

One more week of Class A basketball before regionals begin, while the Class AA schools have two more weekends of battles on the hard court. Most area Class A teams will be centered in a pair of regionals.

Walnut, Ohio, Franklin Center, Newman, Amboy, La Moille and Malden will be based at La Moille, while Byron will host Oregon, Ashton, Forreston, Byron, Polo, Leaf River and Mt. Morris. Amboy and Mt. Morris are the top-rated teams and draw opening-round byes.

Ohio and Walnut will tangle for the fourth time this season to open the La Moille tournament at 7:30 p.m. next Monday. On Tuesday, La Moille battles Newman at 7 p.m., followed by the Franklin Center-Malden encounter at 8:30. Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., Amboy meets the winner of the Ohio-Walnut contest.

The pair of winners from Tuesday will play at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, with the championship contest slated for 7:30 p.m. on Friday. The same schedule will be followed at Byron, where Oregon and Ashton open the tournament at 7:30 p.m. on Monday.

Forreston and Byron tangle at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, with Polo meeting Leaf River at 8:30. On Wednesday, Mt. Morris takes on the Oregon-Ashton winner. The Tuesday night winners will then play at 7:30 on Thursday. The championship game is at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The Byron tournament is a repeat of last year's regional at Mt. Morris. The Mounders got the bye last time, with Byron upsetting Forreston 69-61, Polo downing Leaf River 66-52, and Ashton beating Oregon 55-51 in the opening round. Mt. Morris then beat Ashton 72-52. Polo defeated Byron 72-54, before the Mounders took the title with a 70-54 decision over the Marcos.

The La Moille regional was switched from Newman last season. In the opening round on the Comets' floor, Walnut upset La Moille 77-72, Franklin Center eliminated Ohio 70-62, and Newman trounced Malden 89-63. In the semifinals, Amboy slipped by Walnut 65-55, while Franklin Center raced by Newman 74-58. The Clippers topped the championship with a 50-48 decision over the Eagles.

Paw Paw's Bulldogs have drawn Ottawa Marquette as their first-round opponent on Tuesday at 7 p.m. The Bulldogs will be competing in the Shabbona regional.

Regional tickets for the Ohio-Walnut game will be sold the remainder of the week at Ohio High School. Adult ducats are $1.50, while student tickets are $1 each. Ohio has 300 tickets for sale for the opening session.

CHICAGO—The Chicago Cubs will be "on the air" March 16 for the first time in 1975, it was announced today by the Cubs and WGN-Radio. WGN, which broadcasts all of the Cubs' regular season games, will broadcast 10 spring games from the Southwest so fans will get a preview of the coming year.

The first spring broadcast, with the Cubs meeting the San Francisco Giants at Phoenix Municipal Stadium, will begin at 1:45 p.m., Chicago time, with "Lead-Off Man." Game time that day will be 1:55 p.m.

Again in 1975, the veteran voices of the Chicago Cubs, Vince Lloyd and Hall of Famer Lou Boudreau, will be describing all the action for the 10 spring games as well as all of the regular season games.

Other games to be broadcast will be: the Oakland A's at 1:45 p.m. on March 17, California Angels at 6:30 p.m. on March 22, San Diego Padres at 1:45 p.m. on March 23, Oakland at 6:30 p.m. on March 29, Oakland at 1:45 p.m. on March 30, San Diego at 1:45 p.m. on April 1, Los Angeles Dodgers at 1:45 p.m. on April 2, Milwaukee Brewers at 6:30 p.m. on April 5, and Milwaukee at 1:15 p.m. on April 6.

The Eldena School's trainable basketball team downed the Woodstock-McHenry Purple Thumpers 35-32 recently. High scorer for Eldena was Pat Rock, followed by Barry Zurliene and Irene Campos. Bobby Trader made a last-minute basket for the Eldena victory.

Several copies of Prairie Whitetails are still available for interested sportsmen in the area, at no charge. Simply stop in to pick up a copy.

Dixon High School will host the Sectional Class AA Wrestling Tournament this weekend.

The Dixon Boosters Club will meet at 7:30 this Thursday in the DHS cafeteria.

Dixon girls edge Morrison 33-28

By BOB WALLACE

On the strength of Donna Pinegar's outside shooting, the Dixon Girls Interscholastic team won Monday night at Lancaster Gym, 33-28, over Morrison. The win was the squad's fifth of the season against a single defeat.

Pinegar had 14 points for the night with seven buckets, all from the 10 to 15-foot range. She had three of the buckets in the first quarter, two in the second, and one in each of the last two periods.

Morrison Scores First
Morrison's Cathy Lewis opened the scoring with a break-away lay-up to give her team a 2-0 lead. Dixon's Jacqui Bogott retaliated from inside to knot the score at two before the visitors' Linda VanDerleest gave her team a 4-2 lead.

Pinegar then hit three straight shots from the side in just over a minute to give the home team an 8-6 lead, but Morrison dumped in three consecutive buckets before the initial period ended to gain a 10-8 advantage.

Bogott Hits
Bogott opened the second quarter with a 10-footer to knot the score at 10. Lewis followed with a bucket to once again give the visitors a two-point lead.

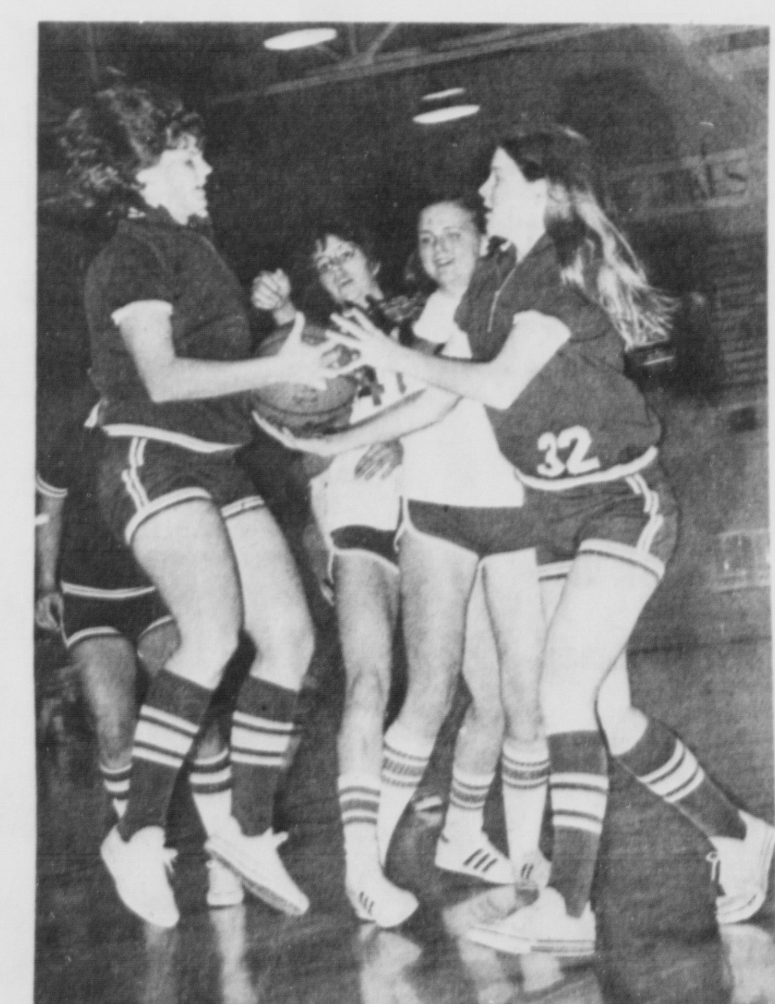

In the next two minutes, Dixon rattled off eight unanswered points to take an 18-12 lead. Pinegar started the streak with a pair of 12-footers, while Marty Shroyer added a fast break lay-up and Peg Smith converted a stolen pass into two points.

Lewis and Sally Potter then hit back-to-back shots to pull Morrison to within two before Vicki Jacobs hit a 15-footer to give the Dixon girls a 20-16 intermission lead.

Morrison Ties Score
Dixon was outscored 9-5 in the third stanza, thus enabling the visitors to tie the score at 25 going into the final eight minutes. The only scoring Dixon could manage in this quarter was a 15-footer by Pinegar, a free throw by Bogott, and a basket by Bogott on an assist from Smith. Meanwhile, Morrison was getting three baskets from their floor leader, Lewis, and a three-point play by VanDerleest. The final Lewis bucket deadlocked the score at 25 with 1:09 left in the period.

Free Throws Ice Game
The home team used four free throws in the final quarter to ice the game. Bogott had two of these charity tosses, along with a two-pointer, and Smith had the other two free throws worth 10 left. Pinegar also added a basket to help Dixon's cause. Morrison could manage only a trio of points into the fourth

Ratings do not win

By The Associated Press

"Being highly rated is great publicity for your school and team, but it doesn't always win games for you," says the coach of undefeated Benton, No. 5 in the AP's current Illinois Class AA high school basketball poll.

Coach Rich Herrin's Benton Rangers climbed one notch this week as the highest-rated Southern Illinois club in the AP rankings but the No. 1 spot again was captured, for the seventh straight week, by also undefeated East Leyden with a similar 22-0 record.

"We realize that the teams ahead of us are good ball clubs and we have no qualms about not being rated any higher," said Herrin, in his 15th Benton season with a team which banks on finesse and speed rather than muscle.

"Actually, you play two seasons—the one on your schedule and the other when the state tournament starts. What you did in the regular season doesn't count when you hit the tournament grind. Then, you've got to be not only good, but very fortunate to stay alive."

The teams rated ahead of Benton also include Chicago Phillips which maintained the No. 2 spot behind East Leyden; Peoria Richwoods which hopped from fourth to third, and Maine South, climbing one peg to fourth.

Defending state champion Proviso East, spilled last weekend by Maine South 72-58, plummeted from third to sixth. East Leyden's Eagles, extending their perfect string with a 78-56 victory over West Leyden, collected 18 of 19 possible first-place ballots.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — America's top sprinter has been barred from his school's track and says he's now got barbed wire marks on his arm from climbing fences into stadiums to train.

Steve Williams says when he quit the San Diego State track team two months ago, the school's track coach, Dick Hill, "banned me from the track, even though I'm still a student there. The whole thing is really silly."

Williams, who won the AAU 100-meter title last year and equalled the world record of 9.9, was ranked No. 2 in the world in 1974 to Cuba's 19-year-old Silvio Leonard. But the 6-foot-3 1/2 Williams said he was overworked by Hill.

The split with Hill, formerly the coach of Bob Hayes at Florida A&M, came during the off season and thus didn't arouse much notice. Hill replied to the charge with: "He was unbeaten in the 220 and 100-meters under me and I feel he has been very unappreciative."

Williams, who has been competing unattached in various uniforms including one bearing the West German national insignia, said he had been asked to run not only the 100 and 220 in dual meets but also both the 440 and mile relays and even an occasional 440-yard dash. He said a world class runner shouldn't have to run that hard all season.

"This is just a matter of someone's advanced idiosyncracies," he said. "Right now I'm training in the sand at the beach, near the water where it's hard. I jump the waves for variety."

He's been told he can't compete at the school when the track is being used — roughly between noon and 6 p.m. — and Hill defends that edict, saying, "The track is just like any other classroom. You need a good learning climate and it's only logical to keep someone away who's disruptive to the learning environment."

When Williams gets tired of running on the sand, he climbs the fence at Balboa Stadium.

Mounders climb

By The Associated Press

The Knights of Chicago Christian maintained their tight hold as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press Class A Illinois high school basketball poll after avenging their only loss of the season.

The Knights boosted their record to 22-1 after defeating Providence 45-24 and Aurora Central Catholic 57-45. A month ago it was Aurora Central Catholic which handed Christian its only defeat 65-61.

Chicago Christian collected 16 of 19 first-place votes and 301 of a possible 304 points from the panel of 19 sports writers and sportscasters making up the voting panel.

Second-ranked Venice, No. 3 Metropolis and No. 5 Buda Western had one first-place vote each as the five top teams retained their positions with Teutopolis hanging onto fourth place.

Venice, however, was victimized by Sumner of St. Louis 59-52 after defeating Valmeyer 85-40 and Marquette Alton 80-54. The Red Devils are now 21-2.

Metropolis, 22-1, and Teutopolis, 20-1, each picked up three triumphs last week while undefeated Buda Western made it 23 straight by defeating Annawan 71-52 and Manlius 87-32.

Nokomis, also 23-0, climbed from seventh to sixth in exchanging places with Madison, 17-3. Vienna, 19-2, retained the No. 8 spot.

After that the ratings received some shuffling as the lower ranked teams were victims of a surge of upsets.

Other point totals were football's Franco Harris, 14, and Phil Villapiano, 13 1/2; tennis' Marty Riessen, 7; skier Hugo Nindl, 5; baseball's Lou Brock, 4; pole vaulter Steve Smith, 3; football's Lawrence McCutcheon, 2; baseball's Mike Hargrove and football's Jack Ham and speed skater Arnd Schenk 1.
